

THE BLAIRMORE ENTERPRISE

VOL. XIV., NO. 15.

BLAIRMORE, ALBERTA, THURSDAY, APRIL 12, 1923.

$2.00 YEARLY

Prof. Janot, scientific palmyrist, who created a sensation in the west while assisting to raise funds for the Red Cross during the great war, is residing for a short time in Blairmore, and should be consulted, especially by the young. He has resided at a hotel here about six years ago, there are many who can testify to the correctness of his delineations. To him the lines and other markings in the hands is a language; hence he is not a fortune-teller. For appointments write Prof. Janot, Blairmore, or phone 287.

No man is too big to be courteous, but many men are too little.

An improvised "speeder" was used on Tuesday morning to convey a quantity of liquor from Crows' Nest to a market in this district. The speeder with its load was however intercepted by Sgt. Scott and his men at a point just west of Coleman, and as a result the liquor was seized and the car held, awaiting a claimant. Steve Farrion, believed to be the owner of the liquor, was placed under arrest, but later released on bail, pending trial to take place early next week. Part of the speeder is believed to be the property of the C.P.R., so in all likelihood a charge of theft, as well as trespass, may be preferred by the company. Gillis & MacKenzie will defend the accused, while L. H. Putnam will prosecute.

L. H. Putnam returned Tuesday morning from Calgary, where he appeared for a Pass client seeking divorce decree. We understand that the decree has been granted.

Yes, smoking is very, very bad for women. It curtails life, impairs motherhood and generally depletes the system. Take Mrs. Sallie Shadrick, who lived for some years in British Columbia and died last week. Ever since she was seven years old she had been an inveterate smoker and she only had eleven children and was cut off in her prime at the age of one hundred and seven.

Protest against reduction of salaries resulted in the re-instatement of Macleod's municipal staff at the old terms. Now the members of the council threaten to resign.

Canada has decided to sell almost half of its merchant marine, or twenty-seven of a total of sixty-four vessels.

BLAIRMORE MINE RESCUE TEAM FIRST CUSTODIANS

At the recent annual meeting of the East Kootenay Mine Safety Association, held at Fernie on March 30th, rules governing the "King Trophy," a gift of Hon. Dr. J. H. King, minister of public works, for annual competition, were considered.

It was decided to procure ten plates to be attached to the trophy, to bear dates from 1922 to 1931, inclusive. Ths action determined that the winners of the 1922 competition, the Blairmore team of the West Canadian Collieries, would be the first custodians of the trophy, and it is to be forwarded to them as soon as the plates have been affixed. The rules adopted were as follows:

1. The Trophy presented by the Hon. Dr. King, Minister of Public Works, shall be known as the "King Trophy," shall remain the property of the East Kootenay Mine Safety Association, and under the Trusteeship of the Executive Officers of the Advisory Board. These officers shall be the President or Chairman, the Secretary-Treasurer and the Vice-Presidents, all of whom shall have been elected according to the Constitution and By-Laws of the East Kootenay Mine Safety Association.

2. The Trophy shall be competed for each year, commencing 1922, at the annual competition and under the Rules of the East Kootenay Mine Safety Association, and shall be presented to the team being adjudged the winners of the Mine Rescue Competition, to be held by them as provided for by these rules.

3. The Trophy shall be placed for safe keeping in the offices of the Company at whose mines the competitors are employed, and the Secretary-Treasurer of the East Kootenay Mine Safety Association shall procure a receipt and file the same.

4. The Trophy must be returned by the holders to the Secretary-Treasurer not less than two weeks prior to next competition.

5. The Secretary-Treasurer shall have the names engraved and shall then forward the plate to the holders of the Trophy so that they may attach the plate in its proper place.

6. When all plates have been engraved, the Trophy shall be withdrawn from competition and shall be disposed of as may be determined by the Trustees.

SPECIAL COURSE FOR TEACHERS

The University of Alberta has made arrangements whereby it can offer certain courses especially designed to meet the needs of teachers who are desirous of making themselves conversant with the present day movements and developments in educational science. In view of the notable developments within recent years of psychological science, especially in the application of experimental methods to the solution of educational problems—the experimental investigation of individual differences, the scientific testing of intelligence, the determination of pedagogical scales, the detection and treatment of mental abnormality, etc.—it is felt that the time has come when the study of movements, fraught with far-reaching consequences for the future methods and outlook in the teaching profession, should be brought within reach of the teachers of the province. With this subject in view, the University of Alberta has arranged a comprehensive scheme of studies.

The death occurred on Saturday morning last of Mr. A. H. Scott, 41, of East Blairmore. Mrs. Scott had been a resident here for but a few weeks and shortly after arrival developed the flu, quickly followed by pneumonia, which led to her death. She leaves behind her husband, four small children. Interment took place at the Protestant cemetery on Sunday afternoon.

A whist drive is being held in the LOO, hall this evening under auspices of the local Rebekah Lodge.

NEW CHURCH LIKELY

If the programme outlined at a conference of members of the local Union church and superintendents of missions, who are acting in an advisory capacity for the church, held here yesterday, materializes, Blairmore will yet possess one of the finest churches in Southern Alberta.

For some time past, the work in the various departments of the Union church has grown to such an extent that a serious handicap is presented through lack of proper accommodation and facilities.

It is proposed to erect a building costing in the neighborhood of $20,000, arranged along lines similar to the new church at Bellevue, having provision for gymnasium, shower baths, etc., in addition to large auditorium.

Dr. J. T. Ferguson, superintendent of Presbyterian missions; Dr. C. C. McLaren, superintendent of Baptist missions; and Rev. Thomas Powell, superintendent of Methodist missions, were in attendance. [At this point it is interesting to note that the problem as confronting Blairmore is the only one in the province that occasions the coming together of the three superintendents. Blairmore having what is practically the only union of representatives of the three denominations in Canada, and as has been remarked "a fitting foundation for the Federal Church of Canada."] The superintendents were each and all sympathetic with conditions here and promised to do all in their power to bring about the accommodation necessary.

In the evening a banquet was served at the Greenhill Grill, when some sixty people, including the clergy, were present. A programme of addressess was interspersed with exceptionally fine selections from the choir.

PICCARIELLO-LASSANRO APPEAL LOST

Ottawa Judges Unanimous

OTTAWA, April 11.—The appeal in the case of Emile Piccariello and Florence Lassandro, condemned to death for the murder of Provincial Constable S. O. Lawson at Coleman, Alberta, last September, was dismissed this morning by the Supreme Court of Canada, without a dissenting vote.

The appeal was brought against the decision of the Alberta appellate court from which Mr. Justice Beck, of that court, dissented.

Piccariello and Mrs. Lassandro were originally condemned at Calgary on December 2 to hang on February 21 last, but were reprieved pending the decision on the appeal.

The next move in the case, it is expected, will be an application to Mr. Lomer Gouin, minister of justice, for commutation of sentence. Some weeks ago, following the decision of the Alberta court of appeal, an application for commutation was before Sir Lester and the case reviewed in detail. It appeal to the supreme court stayed further proceedings in this regard.

Particular interest attaches to the case in view of the fact that one of the two condemned is a woman. What will be done remains for determination by the cabinet. For the last 20 years, however, it has been customary to commute the capital sentence imposed on a woman.

The execution, as a result of the appeal, has been postponed to May 1.

G. W. Wilson, auditor for P. Burns & Co., is in town.

CHAPTER XI

Tangled Threads

Believed nothing Helen was to some extent, by her father's assurances and by the evidence which he had given, she was far from being in a trap cage of mind.

She knew that whatever might be the outcome of the grave situation, Gordon, however, probably would have to suffer for his release of Santry, and she found herself wishing more than ever that her lover had not contributed to his master's waywardness. It was clear that it was not worth what it had cost already and would cost in the future. Surely, his manhood was alive enough not to let him give up so easily. In such an environment, and if his lot had been cast in the East, she could have had always with her a reliable witness, while she was restricted from Maxwell Fayne, reconnoitring the gayeties of New York and Washington made her household a shadow of what it had been. And the two men at the same moment, still, as she sat in the crude little hotel, she would have welcomed a hit-and-run for the sake of contrast.

From the news of the fight at the ranch, she had been compelled to town by the messengers who gathered on the ranch and to trench himself on the ranch and defy the law, which would probably embed him in other difficulties. She had been told that he was rapidly filling up with armed eatermen, who she thought, would do Gordon's cause more harm than good. Good fortune, however, had been with her. A storm was coming up, and the rising wind whipped the flimsy lace curtains like flags. The distant patterning of the thunder and an occasional sharp dash of lightning were on her tired nerves until she could sit still no longer.

For the sake of something to do, she got up to her room, intending to write another letter to her father, but had not been made up, so she returned to the parlor with her fountain pen and writing pad. To Maxwell Fayne she wrote a brief note, which was not likely to be opened. She had been so used to the habit of trifling moods out on Maxwell that to do so, even with a pen, was second nature to her. She despised him for his tolerance, but she had no right to expect that he deserved to himself the privilege of squaring their account, if she should ever become his wife.

She had sat down at the piano in the bare, she wrote at some length to her mother; not telling the whole truth but enough to calm her overexcited nerves. She said nothing of the conversation she had overheard, but went fully into the scene between her father and Gordon Wade. With a little smile hovering on her lips, she drew back from the piano and thrust to crush the manchon. "That will please mother," she said to her father, her pen racing over the paper. Gordon, however, had written a page, a father knew Santry had not killed Jansen, and . . .

The hotel-keeper poked his head in at the door.

"Two ladies to see you, Miss," he announced. "Mrs. Purcell, I daresay."

He gave Helen a glance to avoid the visit, for the obviousness of the plains, he had brought the visitors upstairs with him; and so, blushing, she took off her hat and weighing down her letters against the breeze, she arose to greet them.

"This is good of you, Mrs. Purcell, and I am very glad to meet you again. We have been here since last night and now you have taken pity on us."

Mrs. Purcell shot an "I told you no" glance at Dorothy, which made that young girl's heart leap to her throat.

"I was sorry to hear that we had been at home when you called, Miss Rexhill?"

The two girls looked at each other, eyes wide, veiling hostility. Delightfully beneath a mask of innocence of disposition, and Helen was stung by a realization of the depth of her own secret. She had seen a perfection of well-groomed pose, such as she could hardly hope to attain, and Helen was impressed with her rival's grace and natural beauty.

"Won't you sit down?"

"Oh, aren't I disturbing you?"

Mrs. Purcell took up with a glance toward the writing machine.

"Indeed, you are not. I was writing some duty letters to kill time. I'm out too glad to stop because I'm real anxious to hear what is going on outside. Isn't it dreadful about Mr. Wade?"

"You mean, his helping Santry?" Dorothy asked with a little touch of pride which did not escape her hostess.

"Indeed, you are not. I was writing some duty letters to kill time. I'm out too glad to stop because I'm real anxious to hear what is going on outside. Isn't it dreadful about Mr. Wade?"

Dorothy glanced at her keenly and smiled.

"I have an idea that they may find Gordon hard to arrest," she remarked.

"Yes," Mrs. Purcell put in. "He is in jail. Still, I agree with you that there is no cause for anxiety."

The good lady did not have a chance every day to agree with the daughter of a United States Senator, and the two girls were soon on intimate terms.

"The people feel so strongly that Santry should never have been arrested that they are not likely to let Gordon go free for freeing him," Dorothy explained.

"Why, Dorothy?" her mother inquired, looking round. "She had been so used to the habit of trifling moods out on Maxwell that to do so, even with a pen, was second nature to her. She despised him for his tolerance, but she had no right to expect that he deserved to himself the privilege of squaring their account, if she should ever become his wife."

"I can't say that I have the time to do so, in the habit of trifling moods out on Maxwell that to do so, even with a pen, was second nature to her. She despised him for his tolerance, but she had no right to expect that he deserved to himself the privilege of squaring their account, if she should ever become his wife."

"What do you mean?" Helen asked, with a sudden touch of suspicion in her manner. "I really want to know. I am so out of touch with him here, so ill informed."

"At least you can sit here at the windows and learn all you wish to know. There isn't a man in this town that would see Gordon arrested and not help him. He is running away with his horse here now. You know, it's something like a violin string. You can stretch it just so far, and then it snaps. That's all."

"Dorothy, I'm really mortified that you've no occasion to be, Mrs. Purcell," Helen interrupted, smiling, for the plain truth, you know."

"Mrs. Purcell laughed feebly.

"Dorothy, I must tell you, Mrs. Wade is so fond of you that she can't bear to hear a word against him," she explained. "Her sense of less majesty was running away with her. She has a very strong, ardent glance at her. 'Not that I think he did it at all, you understand; but . . . perfectly,' declared Mrs. Purcell, with rising color, and an equal feeling of alarm, as she turned to leave.

"Mrs. Purcell shot an "I told you no" glance at Dorothy, which made that young girl's heart leap to her throat.

The Human Skin

One Source of Leather During the Days of the French Revolution

Man's most perfectly fitting garment—his skin, has occasionally been removed from his body for the barbarous purpose of converting it into leather. When John Ziska, the leader of the Hussites died, he left directions that his skin could be tanned and made into a drum. "The noise which my skin will make," he said, "will frighten all our enemies and put them to flight." During the French Revolution the traffic in human skins prospered horribly. When leather was scarce and expensive, the committee of public safety ordered to furnish unlimited quantities of leather at lowest prices. His offer was accepted and he was accommodated with a workshop at the Castle of Meudon. His work was carried on in secrecy and the committee were soon furnished with new top boots made from human skins. The tannery at Meudon after a time grew quite notorious. Bookbinding in leather became one of its industries. Society encouraged the tannery, and the Duke of Orleans, at a hall in Paris, appeared wearing a pair of breeches made from human skin.

"Oh, don't you think he could do such a thing?" Mrs. Purcell asked, much shocked.

"I don't know. I hope not."

"I don't know," Dorothy burst out apathetically. "I know Gordon Wade too well to think for one minute that he did it; and every true friend of his ought to speak out at once and say the same thing."

The challenge in her voice was unmistakable, and Mrs. Purcell was greatly astounded. She had been waiting anxiously at Helen's door and was relieved to see that the latter had lost none of her poise.

"Oh, I don't know, either," said Dorothy. "But things have to be done here in these mountains that I find it hard to keep up with them."

IMPORTANT CHANGES IN STAMP TAXES BEING FORECASTED

Rumors of two or three more or less drastic changes in business taxes are discussed in an Ottawa speech to Canadian Grocer. These are said to be:

1. Cancellation of the Receipt Tax.
2. Cancellation of the Excise Tax on beverages and confectionery.

3. Changes in stamp tax on checks and documents, etc. This change would be maintaining the present 2c stamp on checks up to $100 and above, that is, 4c only instead of the present graded scale.

The government has secured a much greater revenue from the Sales Tax than it anticipated, which leaves it in a position to make some changes in these taxes that have proven more or less of an annoyance to business men.

Tobacco manufacturers are looking for a reduction in cigarette taxes when Mr. Fielding presents his budget. Present taxes are 75c per thousand and a return to $6.00 is expected. A striking indication of the certainty in the minds of the manufacturers was an announcement of Macdonald's this week that they have lowered prices of cigarettes in anticipation of reduction in cigarette taxes through the new budget.

THRIFT

Thrifit is frugality; good husbandry, or, if you wish, the economical management of property. To be thrifit means to be careful of one's income and expenses. It is the best way to save money.

It was chief during the war that the word "thrifit" lost much of its significance.

Is it any wonder, then,

we hear many contend, that the world today is regard to hard times?

It has been estimated that the vast majority of people have lost their homes and living conditions.

A man goes around unemployed because he is unable to make both ends meet.

He is apt to blame conditions over which he had no control.

But, someone will say, the guy party.

Perhaps he earned thirty dollars a week, but he arranged to pay off, at the rate of thirty-five a week, his debts, and when he repays, he loses his face, he claims that somebody is trying to do him in and knocks the other fellow instead of hitting himself on the head once.

But, someone will say, he may wake up and see himself as he really is.

"But, someone will say, the milk has been spilled and it is of no use to try to cover it. How can I manage with only one small income and nothing to save for a "rainy day?"

In other words, is it possible to be thrifit? In many cases incomes are not to be considered as thrifit compulsory, but the difficulty is that many people practice thrifit in a hazardous way—which perhaps means not all are thrifit, according to a definite plan.

The method of planning expenditures according to carefully prepared budgets is coming to be used rather than the old "eat and drink" plan.

And the doubt whether that is the most effective way to manage expenses.

Many households are managed on the basis of a budget, but it is agreed that the method of planning expenditures by a very generally worked-out budget is better for school districts, cities, and in fact for all kinds of business concerns.

At the beginning of the financial year, the household or personal budget is complete without having in it—the first item—a certain part of one's income, such as a fifth or a tenth, ought to be determined upon as savings—it should be some part even though it may be a small part.

And when the envelope is received the very first money spent from it should be that part planned for in the budget.

When the envelope is received the very first money spent from it should be that part planned for in the budget.

No household or personal budget is complete without having in it—the first item—a certain part of one's income, such as a fifth or a tenth,

ought to be determined upon as savings—it should be some part even though it may be a small part.

should be that part planned for in the budget.

something.

Never before our country was so far into the War. We have so much convenient opportunities for safe investment open to all, as were furnished by the issue of Thrift

Stamps and Saving Stamps. These were issued for the purpose of investing, in any amount from twenty-five cents to a thousand dollars.

The one dollar Thrift Stamps and the twenty-five cent Savings Stamps.

Certainly, however, have been added to the list in 1921, so that now the complete list is the twenty-five cent and the one dollar Savings Stamps.

These have been added to the list in 1921, so that now the complete list is the twenty-five cent and the one hundred dollar and the thousand dollar Treasury Saving Certificates. They don't fluctuate in value, but are always worth more than they cost because of accuted interest.

Some may feel that the interest paid on all safe investments such as these is too great, but we must keep just keep their money in a checking account, with the result, all too often, that the checking account has slipped away when it was not expected. But, in addition to the interest received on money put into

Savings Stamps, the habit of regularity is worth much, and then, one can easily afford to check his money out in a few seconds.

If the future historian, knowing nothing of this generation, will be able to gather from which records, to see figures which reveal our "orgies of spending," he will naturally reach the conclusion that the past and present and the blinding of our hair, were considered by this generation of importance than the development of the automobile.

It is true, and will remain true, that C. H. Carothers said during the 1919 Thrift Campaign. Here are his words: "The strength of a govern-

A BRIGHT IDEA

The "Drumheller Mail" suggests among other things, that the government might find a good source of revenue in licenses to shoot book peddlers. The Mail's comment is as follows:

New Revenues

"The new taxation, affecting as it does, soft drinks and slot machines will be a hard blow on Drumheller, where the population is divided into two classes—those who fill and those who empty the equipment used in connection with both these attractions.

We have always proclaimed in these columns the necessity for facing facts and collecting revenue where the revenue is, and it is evident that the farmer government has been reading up our hints.

We stand unflinchingly for the provincial dog tax, a poll tax upon all citizens who belong to less than two fraternal organizations, a stamp tax of two cents upon all who haunt dog-pot platforms without having any special business there and we also advise the sale of licenses at a hundred dollars each entitling the holder to aim at and shoot book agents and parties earning their way through college by peddling magazines."

RAID SPORTING PAPER

Armed with authority of a search warrant, constables commanded by Sergeant Archambault, of Inspector Egan's special section, Montreal, on Saturday afternoon visited the premises 103 St. Francois Xavier street, and in room 813 found papers alleged to be capable of giving information on horse racing, and "devices for recording bets for gambling purposes."

The police visitors also found Ivan Kuronoff, who lives in an uptown hotel, said to be the occupant of the office and placed him under arrest. Later Kuronoff was released on bail.

In addition to removing papers found in the offices, the police cut off the extensive telephone service, but left the telegraph wire service unbroken.

The office was used in connection with the publication of "The Sportsman," which being issued daily on paper of that hue, is also known as "The Green Sheet."

The League Of Nations

In a world turned topsy-turvy by the Great War and its aftermath of increased racial bitterness and suspicions, staggering burdens of debt, economic troubles, and resultant social unrest, leading to all manner of agitation and the preaching of ultra-socialist and communistic doctrines, it behoves all citizens having the lasting welfare of their country and mankind at heart, and who are desirous of assisting towards a rapid return to world sanity, to reconstruct and strengthen national and international forces of stability, and to combat and control the reactionary and revolutionary elements which thrive through the encouragement of national ill-will, the pandering to racial animosities, and the exploitation of all economic ills.

The present is an age of fault-finding and destructive criticism. The pessimists and preachers of blue ruin far outnumber those who express hope for the future and can see the silver lining which edges every cloud. Those who seek to destroy, to uproot, to tear down, are not backward in voicing opinions which, if generally accepted and acted upon, would actually result in the conditions which they declare now threaten unless their unsound and radical theories are adopted. It is unfortunate, on the other hand, that those possessing a saner, broader vision are rather hating and timid in declaring their opinions before the world and giving reasons—with which all history abounds—for the faith that is in them.

Take the League of Nations as an example. Its critics are to be heard everywhere and in every land. Every weak point in the League Covenant is seized upon, continually harped upon, and magnified out of all due proportion. The League of Nations is by no means perfect. How could it be? It is a human instrument, and as such has its weaknesses and frailties. It had a birth pangs when the leaders of the world were at fever heat in the work of statesmanship, while striking the best deal possible was limited by the fact that they had to give heed to popular opinion in their respective countries or be swept aside for those who would be so bound. And at its inception the League was crippled by the withdrawal of support by one of the nations which helped to bring it into being and to which it had every right to look for its strongest support. A pure insularism, supported and encouraged by political partisanship, killed such support.

Nevertheless, the League of Nations, with all the handicaps from which it suffers, has demonstrated itself as one of the most powerful factors in preventing more than one world catastrophe since the Great War. It has unquestionably been the means of extinguishing sparks in more than one inflammable portion of the world which might easily have renewed the awful holocaust which well-nigh destroyed civilization in the last decade. Slowly but surely it is rehabilitating certain war-bankrupt countries, as, for example, Austria. Through the establishment of a permanent court of international justice and peace a step of incalculable importance has been taken.

The chief object of the League, however, is to mould public opinion the world over in favor of the settlement of international differences by reason, arbitration, fair and equitable compromise, rather than a savage resort to force. In the development of this function the League requires not merely the active support of our Canadian Government, but of each individual citizen who feels that his voice for world betterment and mutual understanding is preferable to war.

As already pointed out, in connection with the actual drafting of the League Covenant, responsible statesmen of the world over are limited in their efforts by the state of public opinion in their respective countries. If public opinion in Canada is informed and alert and stands solidly behind the aims and ideals of the League, if Canadians who believe in the League openly support it, stress its strong points and seek to strengthen it where it is weak, if its friends and supporters actively endeavor to win others to its support, and diligently combat the views of those who seek to undermine it, then the Government of Canada will be a power in the Councils of the League and an influential factor among the nations.

Canada has already attained a proud position in the League. This Dominion's influence has been and is recognized in this great World Assembly. But by the adoption of the right and sane view by our people generally, that position can be strengthened and our influence for good extended. Surely the people of Canada have suffered enough through a war which was not of their making to arouse them to wholehearted support of an institution which aims it to make a recurrence of such a world disaster remote and ultimately impossible.

Next War in the Air

Whether we like it or not, we have to face the possibility of another war, and there is no doubt where that next war will be fought. It will be fought in the air. A strong and up-to-date civil fleet of aeroplanes, together with plant, capable of being turned to military purposes at a moment's notice is as essential to the safety of England as is the Grand Fleet—if it is not more so. For in the next war the Channel will have shrunk to dimensions even smaller than in the last—London Daily Express.

To Abolish Penny Banks

The Penny Bank is due to pass out of the public school system of Ontario, and there is no doubt where that next war will be fought. It will be fought in the air. A strong and up-to-date civil fleet of aeroplanes, together with plant, capable of being turned to military purposes at a moment's notice is as essential to the safety of England as is the Grand Fleet—if it is not more so. For in the next war the Channel will have shrunk to dimensions even smaller than in the last—London Daily Express.

The main reason for the proposed abolition of the school banking system is that it interferes too much with the regular routine of the school work.

NEW BLOOD NEEDED IN THE SPRINGTIME

Try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as a Blood-Improving Tonic.

Every man, woman and child needs new, rich, red blood at this time of the year. That is a scientific fact, well known to all. The blood group is not the same as the white blood, but is not enough of it, and spring brings out the effect. Take pills, and see how many people are pale and listless, that is, of course, unless they complain of being easily tired, their appetite is poor, and they are often depressed and low-spirited. That is mainly due to the fact that they have to improve their blood supply; but often the digestion is weakened so that they cannot turn food into blood without help. Here comes Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to the rescue. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have a direct action on the blood and enable you to get full use of the blood-making elements. They are a tonic, and as such exert their effect—your appetite returns, your nerves are steadier, color returns to the cheeks and lips, you have more vim and energy, and can work with greater facility. The above results are borne out by the experience of Mr. J. P. Greschik, Janow, Man., who says: "Very recently I found myself very weak and listless. My stomach was quite out of order; I could eat but little, and what I did eat did not agree to nourish me. I did not feel like having exercise. All my hands and legs were blue, and I had no strength to work. I tried several remedies but did not get good results. Then one day I read in our newspaper about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and decided to try them. I used a half dozen boxes, and now feel well and strong, have good appetite, and can work with vim and energy. Naturally I have great faith in this medicine as a blood-making tonic."

Whether you are seriously ill, or merely feel tired and listless, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills this spring. They are sold by medicine dealers everywhere, or will be sent by mail at 5 cents a box, by writing to Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Is It a Mistaken Policy

An Age-old Argument that Inevitably Makes for War

The argument that the stronger we are the less temptation will there be to attack us will be used a thousand times in the coming years as it has been in the past. And it is indicative of the one-sidedness of political thinking that it never seems to strike us that the position we take here is an anti-social one, that it asks of others something we passionately refuse to accept when asked of us. We do not tolerate the existence of a group of rival powers so strong that resistance to it would be hopeless—condemning us to a painful diplomatic inferno—making our free movement over the world a matter of suffering. —Norman Angell, in "Is Britain to Live?"

Rail Rates In Canada Lower Than in U.S.

Omaha Newspaper Claims American Freight Rates on Wheat Much Higher Than Here

Investigation shows that Canadian railroads are performing the same service for Canadian wheat raisers at just about one-half the figure charged by American railroads, says the Omaha World-Herald. And the Canadian farmers are complaining that they do not get a square deal.

Western American farmers are paying from 50 per cent. to 100 per cent. more to get their wheat to the lakes than the Canadian farmers have to pay, but how? Nobody seems to know.

The three great lake ports for western wheat are Fort William, the Canadian lumber port; Duluth, for Northern American lumber; and Chicago for central farmers. All three of these ports are at the head of the lakes. Fort William is some 290 miles from Duluth. All three are about equal distance from Buffalo.

Sweetgrass, Montana, on the Great Northern railroad, is about ten miles from Coutts, Alberta, on the Canadian Pacific. Sweetgrass is 1,004 miles from Duluth. Coutts is 1,203 miles from Fort William. When the American farmer at Sweetgrass ships his wheat to Duluth, 1,004 miles, he pays 43 cents per hundred pounds. When his Canadian neighbor ships his wheat to Fort William, 1,203 miles away, he pays 27½ cents. The American—like the 200-mile shorter haul is 15½ cents greater. And the two farmers may live within sight of each other.

When the Lander, Wyoming, farmer ships his wheat 1,275 miles to Chicago over the Burlington, he pays 89½ cents per 100 pounds—as compared with the 27½ cents paid by the Canadian farmer at Coutts.

Behave Decently Or Perish

Approaching a State in Which We Could All Live in Harmony

Now that man can do so much more than ever he could before, so that he is approaching a state in which all mankind could live almost like one respectable family or could annihilate himself by the perfection of its poison gases and its cultures of deadly germs, the piety of the old dispute between the ascetics and the humanists increases in like proportion. We are becoming so strong that if we are not good, we shall pull the whole temple down on our heads. We must either behave decently or perish, and the issue cannot be evaded by calling upon science to give us goodness as a kind of by-product of the things that it can and does give us. Borrowed Way to Fortune

Small Loan Bought Partnership Which Netted Fifty Million

Henry Phillips was associated with Andrew Carnegie for fifty years in the steel business. His wealth increased from nothing to $50,000,000. His climb was illustrated by a friend who told of the career of a man who owned a large chicken farm.

"How did you happen to start in the chicken business?" somebody asked him.

"When I was young I was out of work for a spell," he answered. "So I borrowed a hen and a dozen fresh eggs from a neighbor. I set the hen on the eggs and all of them hatched. Then I borrowed another hen and had a dozen eggs. I took the hen and the dozen eggs I borrowed back to the owner. He had what I wanted from him and I had a dozen chickens. The dozen chickens started my farm."

Phillips borrowed 25 cents to advertise for a job. Later he borrowed $600 to enter the partnership which made him rich.

Ingenious Wind Turbine

Has Greater Efficiency than Windmill Says Japanese Inventor

An ingenious wind turbine, said to be capable of utilizing air currents in the generation of power with far greater efficiency than its predecessor, the windmill, has been perfected by A. Ozaki, a Japanese inventor. He claims the turbine in operation turns into power 50 per cent. of the forces of wind which usually strike the planes. The ordinary windmill turns out 20 per cent. The equipment includes a storage battery arrangement by which the power generated may be held in reserve to secure uninterrupted service when the wind subsides.

F. Crandall, of the British United Press. An experimental plant of moderate power has been operated for a year between London and Halifax, and thence overland to the large American cities. It is now proposed to erect a large station for handling press matter exclusively. There are stations in Britain and on the continent as far east as Moscow.

May Postpone Proposed Amendments To The Grain Act This Session

Ottawa.—The question of amending the Grain Act, which is admitted to need amendment, was discussed at a prolonged conference between Hon. H. A. Robins, Minister of Trade and Commerce, and the Board of Grain Commissioners. The view expressed was that, inasmuch as the whole grain trade is to be the subject of a full enquiry, it would be inadvisable to revise the act until the commission makes a report embodying its recommendations. Very probably several amendments will be suggested as a result of the investigation.

In consequence there will be no amending legislation this session. The commission to enquire into the grain trade will be appointed very shortly. It will likely be composed of either three or five members. If the larger number is decided on, it will consist of a lawyer, a grain grower, a member of the grain trade, a miller and a shipping man.

Everything is set for the establishment this year of a wheat board to handle the present season's crop. The legislation on the subject enacted at the last session of Parliament suffices to cover this year if an order-in-council is passed invoking its provisions. This order is now in course of preparation.

Requests for the board method of marketing have come from Saskatchewan and Alberta, two provinces being essential to putting the law into effect. Manitoba's attitude is more uncertain than last year.

The personnel of the board was left to the provinces to select but none of those proposed would carry on this year. The Dominion Government is inclined to follow the same course but the provinces do not appear particularly insistent upon having a say in the nominations.

Does Not Believe Stories

Egyptologist Doubts Curse Theory of Lord Carnarvon's Death

Chicago.—Prof. D. D. Luckenbill, Egyptologist at the University of Chicago, and assistant to Prof. James Henry Breasted, who accompanied the Carnarvon expedition to Egypt, characterized as "pure bosh" the published stories on the curse theory of Lord Carnarvon's death.

"An Egyptian king wasn't worried about what men were going to do long after his death." He decorated his grave and ordered luxurious trappings to be buried with him, so that these articles might placate the forty-two gods whose approval he must win before his soul might find peace. His interests were purely spiritual," said Professor Luckenbill.

"I thought I had made it clear in my public statements that my object in coming here was to give information about the League of Nations as a first hand observer of a great international experiment. ### Near East Relief Hindered By Turks

Authorities Say Organization Must Pay Consumption Tax

Constantinople.—The Turkish customs authorities have refused to permit the Near East Relief to continue its efforts of relief to the 25,000 destitute and hungry refugees in Palestine unless the organization paid the new consumption tax, which is four times as great as the import duty, it was announced by the Near East relief representatives.

The tax demanded by the Turks totals $15,000, and applies to the relief supplies consisting of rice, sugar, flour, soap, oil, salt and dried people of the United States. Protection was made to Adnan Bey and Haim Bey, representatives of the American Government in Constantinople. The Turkish functionaries, however, declared they were powerless to interfere with the orders from Ankara.

JAMES MCKINNON PAYS TRIBUTE TO DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

He Suffered from Kidney Trouble for a Considerable Time and now Loses No Energy in the Pursuit of His Profession.

Mulgrev, N.S. (Special).—"I will never be without a box of Dodd's Kidney Pills in the house." That is the opinion of Mr. James M. Kinnon, a well known resident here, who pays to the old reliable kidney remedy.

"I feel it is my duty," Mr. McKinnon said, "to let all know how I have been benefited by taking Dodd's Kidney Pills. I was in a run-down condition before taking them, having pain in my back, got thin and tired. Then I took Dodd's Kidney Pills. After taking five boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills I feel better than I ever did."

The manufacturer of Dodd's Kidney Pills says that the kidney trouble is not known by the large number of people who keep them always on hand. They have learned that the product is a safe and effective remedy for kidney disease such as rheumatism, dropsy, kidney and heart disease, to correct the early symptoms of kidney trouble.

Dodd's Kidney Pills have built their reputation on the good work they have done. Ask your neighbors if Dodd's Kidney Pills are not the sovereign remedy for kidney trouble.

League Of Nations Plan Would Organize World On A Peaceful Basis

New York.—Lord Robert Cecil, in an interview with newspapermen, denied that his trip to the United States was for the purpose of instructing the people of the United States what they should do about joining or not joining the League of Nations.

"I am not an impartial interventor in other people's affairs," he asserted. "I thought I had made it clear in my public statements that my object in coming here was to give information about the League of Nations as a first hand observer of a great international experiment. I would be guilty of the grossest impertinence if I attempted to instruct the United States people in their own affairs."

The report adds that hundreds of Jews are in flight from town to town in an effort to escape their oppressors. Representatives of the Yemensite in Palestine have appealed to Jewish organizations to provide aid with which the Yemensite Jews may be able to escape to Palestine.

First Canadian Cattle Since Embargo Removal Landed In Manchester

Glasgow.—This city, the official home of the movement for the removal of the embargo on Canadian cattle in Great Britain, was by a few hours the distinction of landing the first shipment to the Old Country from the Dominion.

The Donaldson Line, Concordia, with 221 head of Canadian cattle, arrived two days ago in readiness for the arrival of fog and heavy seas. The honor of receiving the first Canadian cattle, therefore, went to Manchester.

The entry of the first cattle here was marked by an interesting ceremony. The Concordia approached the wharf gaily, decked with streamers of flags, and invited company awaited her arrival on a platform erected for the ceremony. The first animal to land had to breast a red tape, which was laid across the gangway, and was symbolic of the Government red tape which barred access to Canadian cattle into Great Britain for 31 years. The first animal did more than breast the tape. It upset the Hon. Duncan Marshall, Commissioner of Agriculture for Canada, and William Henderson, Commissioner of Agriculture for Great Britain, who had the movement against the embargo, who had gone on the deck of the Concordia to lead the animal off. The animal, after at first refusing to move, suddenly careened off, throwing the Commissioner heavily and dispersing the crowd of spectators.

A civic luncheon in celebration of the arrival of the cattle was held later.

France Would Scrap Fleet

Naval Armament Conference is Urged By French Statesmen

Paris.—The President of the Naval Committee of the French Senate, Gustave de Kerqueze, in a statement to the Associated Press, advocated the summoning of a further naval armament conference which would have for its object the actual scrapping of the big navies of the world.

"Guarantees in the name of the French Parliament," he declared, "that France will suppress her entire fleet if the other powers will do likewise."

M. de Kerqueze is probably the best informed man on naval affairs in either House of Parliament.

In his statement he said:

"If the world does not look out it will destroy itself totally in a new war."

"And each day I am informed of more dreadful arms of warfare which will lead, not only to the remaking of the national map, but the extinction of untold millions of combatants and civilians alike."
